

Hult International Business School professor delivers Executive Seminar in Mexico City

(Boston – March 2, 2010) Hult International Business School’s top-ranked MBA program will present an Executive Seminar March 6th at the Hilton Mexico City Reforma, featuring one of its world-renowned professors, Dr. Hitendra Patel, on the topic of “Winning the Next Global Growth Story.”

Patel, also a senior leader at Arthur D. Little and the Monitor Group, expertly draws from his extensive background in the field of innovation and strategy to present practical insights on how to uncover the next industries, innovations, and countries that will develop and prosper as part of the next economic super-cycle. The seminar demonstrates Hult’s approach of providing cutting-edge business education utilizing professors who have achieved success both inside and outside academia.

“Our professors possess both critical real-world experience as well as top academic credentials,” says Hult President Dr. Stephen Hodges. “What they say can directly impact how you decide to shape your career or manage your business.”

Dr. Patel is currently Managing Director of the Center for Innovation, Excellence and Leadership, a global training institute for companies and individuals. Hult International Business School (formerly known as the Arthur D. Little School of Management) is the world’s only global business school with operations in Boston, San Francisco, London, Dubai, and Shanghai.
